DURING YOUR TRIP

- Celebrate cultural differences and do your best to stay flexible.
- Remember people's names and get to know them before requesting information. Pleasantries are important.
- Express gratitude! Local community members are very hospitable and will commonly offer food and drink. The trip lead will discuss etiquette around accepting food from participants during the pre-trip call.
- Try not to go anywhere alone or without your trip leader's knowledge.
- You may be approached and asked to give money. Our policy is to support communities to meet their own needs and not to give cash.
- You'll be staying in Rancho Nunan. The trip lead will book your room for you and will reach out to discuss rooming options.
- Rancho Nunan offers breakfast and dinner. Most lunches will be arranged by the local staff. Water served at restaurants and in the community is usually safe to drink, but please consult with a staff member if you are unsure.
- Some toilets cannot flush paper. Please be aware if there is a trash bin.

We're so glad you're joining us on this transformative journey! Please don't hesitate to reach out to your trip lead with any questions. You'll receive a manual with more on-the-ground trip information once we arrive in the Dominican Republic.

ETHICAL STORYTELLING + PHOTOGRAPHY GUIDELINES

Plant With Purpose believes that all people are created in the image of God and that we should interact with and portray everyone we meet with respect. If you choose to share photos and stories from your trip, please do so in an intentional way that preserves farming partners' dignity, safety, and right to privacy.

1. Always ask permission to take a partnering farmer or staff member's picture.
2. Ask a parent's permission to take a picture of anyone under 18.
3. Only share photos that communicate participant's dignity.
4. Never tag people in photographs. Only use a farmer's first name or given pseudonym (if applicable) when sharing their story publicly.
5. Turn off geotagging on your smartphone before arriving onsite and avoid sharing the name of a specific community (using the watershed name is okay).

1 Plant With Purpose covers all trip-related costs in country except personal purchases. We recommend bringing some small bills for emergencies and tourism days. Most businesses will accept U.S. dollars or credit cards, and you can exchange USD for Dominican Pesos in the airport.

2 Insect repellent will reduce the chance of insect-borne disease. Tip: Use a spray with 30% DEET or lower since it has fewer health risks.

3 If you aren't sure whether or not the place you're staying provides towels, ask your trip leader. You may pack a small, lightweight, absorbent travel towel.

4 Nylon/Nylon-blend recommended for active days
